Abstract:

Our lived experience of hatred, climate injustice, inequity, and greed is devastating. At a time of great social unrest, a modern psychoanalytic frame can be an anchoring perspective from which to understand the vicissitudes of dyadic and group dynamics. What are our patients asking of us and what are we asking of ourselves? Are we up to the task as clinicians in this trauma-normal world? This is an open dialogue for trainees to discuss the challenges we face together. Working in interdisciplinary domains in a variety of organizational realms and drawing on experience as an educator, clinician, and consultant to professionals at all stages of career development has refined the presenter's sensitivity to the demands trainees face. Trainees are invited to bring their perplexing questions and seemingly insurmountable clinical dilemmas for discussion. This will be a confidential space.

Presenter Bio:

Beverly J. Stoute, MD, DFAPA, DFAACAP, FABP, a child, adolescent, and adult psychiatrist and psychoanalyst, leadership advisor and organizational consultant, is an internationally recognized scholar, educator, and leader in the field of psychoanalysis. A Training and Supervising Analyst at Emory University Psychoanalytic Institute and a Child and Adolescent Supervising Analyst at The New York Psychoanalytic Institute, Dr. Stoute is on the faculty of the Emory University and Morehouse Schools of Medicine and has taught in the Leadership Fellows Program of the Emory Goizueta Business School. A Distinguished Fellow of both the American Psychiatric Association and the American Academy of Child and Adolescent Psychiatry, she has received many awards in many areas.

Dr. Stoute has developed, moderated, and presented over 150 panels and programs nationally and internationally. Her scholarly work, featured in the archives of the Freud Museum in London, has been translated into German, Spanish, and Portuguese. She has held multiple leadership positions, including on the Executive Committee of the American Psychoanalytic Association and as a Co-Chair of The Holmes Commission on Racial Equality in American Psychoanalysis. Drawing on thirty years of experiences as an educator, clinician, consultant and executive coach and leadership advisor, Dr. Stoute has collaborated with professionals at all stages of career and professional development in not-for-profit organizations, academic medical centers, universities, mental health training programs, community mental health, boards of education, business, and the law. Her 2023 book, co-edited with Michael Slevin is entitled The Trauma of Racism: Lessons from the Therapeutic Encounter. She maintains a full-time private practice of child, adolescent and adult psychiatry, psychotherapy, psychoanalysis, family therapy, supervision, organizational consultation, and leadership advising in Atlanta, GA.

Learning Objectives:

1. Participants will be able to identify how psychoanalytic principles of group dynamics are applicable in understanding cultural trauma during times of social upheaval.
2. Participants will be able to identify two reasons why countertransference reactions can be more difficult to process during times of social upheaval.
